Interfaculty Sport Constitution

Introduced 3rd August 2011

Version as of 14/02/2019

The Emily Small Shield

Each year since 1939, Sydney Uni students and staff have competed against each other for the honour and pride of their faculty in a variety of sports. Competitions include touch football, soccer, netball, basketball, cricket, tennis, ultimate frisbee, badminton, volleyball, handball, and a 5 km race. Points are awarded to the winners and place-getters of each competition whilst participation points are also given to all faculties whose students compete. The faculty with the most points at the end of the year wins and is awarded the Emily Small Shield! Participation is FREE and provides an opportunity for all undergraduates, postgraduate students, and staff to have fun and safely compete for their faculty in a social atmosphere!

University Programs at Sydney Uni Sport & Fitness aim to provide sport & recreation activities for students and the wider University population, including staff, alumni, and local community members. The programs seek to enhance the 'University experience' by making available a wide range of activities fostering healthy lifestyles, opportunities for team work, new friendships, and new skills.
